Poet's Corner.

For the Lebanon Post.
I LOVE THEE YET.

I love thee yet—
Altho' I tread the path of Manhood;
Still there are holy times when boyhood's
Wild and happy dreams come back
To dwell again in Memory's garden,
The gay, green spring comes smiling on
With leaping rills and sporting gales,
Kissing her flowers o'errejoicing plains;
Her violets blooming in the haunted wood,
Her hares bells gazing in the sunlit streams,
Her wild birds carol in the maple groves,
Her thousand bright and beaming charms,
Come floating up to the eye and ear,
Bringing back the Past with its tales of love.

The Summer too,
With her fascinating twilights still returns,
To woo me forth to some secluded bower,
Where timid Nature sets in deep repose,
And the dew and dowers hold their silent loves.
There, too, beneath the melancholy shades
I wake the music of my sweet Guitars,
'Till winged Fancy brings thee back again
To love me and to share my gentle strains.

The mournful Autumn,
With her drooping leaves and azure skies,
The rich fruits bending 'neath her frowns,
The still, romantic moonlight shades,
All bring to me some long passed joy,
Shared with thee.

But they are gone—
Gone like some transient summer cloud,
On wings that never will bear it back again.
Be it so—yet still my boyhood's early love
Will live till Death shall bear me down
Into a deep and quiet grove.

ALICE, OR, THE LOVERS.

"He is a conceited fop, and I hate him. I don't wish to have anything to do with him. I have a great mind not to go."

Such were the words of pretty Miss Alice to her mother, as the door closed on Mr. Hiram Blunt. She was charmingly dressed in readiness for a picnic, except putting on a funny, small crowned, and broad-brimmed straw hat, with a yellow fringe and green ribbons, which her mother was holding out for her.

Poor Mr. Hiram had come down to Bloomfield with the express intention of making an impression on Miss Alice. He had seen her but once before; it was for about ten minutes, at an evening party somewhere the preceding winter, where he heard her sing one song, her beauty and her voice, and her fascinating manners, had captivated his attention, and he had cherished her image in his memory. There was to be a picnic at Bloomfield, where she lived with her mother; and he had succeeded in prevailing upon his aunt, who lived in the same village, to secure an invitation for him in such a way that he should be the escort of Miss Alice. He had driven out from the city the evening before, and had accoutred himself in the morning of the auspicious day with much care and trouble. Like many people, however, he did not know his own good points; and fortunately for the excellence of his general character, his best point was not his dress. Not that he had dressed himself in bad taste; he had too much good sense for that; but a nicely arranged external appearance did not suggest an adequate notion of Mr. Hiram Blunt. When, therefore, he appeared before Miss Alice in a jaunty little straw hat, with a long ribbon hanging down on one side, and a tailor's freak in the "sack" line for a coat, and a white vest, and a faultless collar, with a striking cravat selected for the occasion, after an examination of the assortments to be found in all the stores of the city—laid after many trials, in a most accurate knot, his "pants" cut in a most unexceptionable style; and his bright varnished leather shoes shining with their little silver clasps—when he appeared in this guise, with a ridiculous, slender silver topped cane in his hand, he suggested the idea of a dandy so broadly, that it concealed his true nature so effectually, and he completely effaced from the mind of Miss Alice her agreeable impression of the ten minutes of the preceding winter, and caused her to dread passing in his presence the whole day, which she had indeed been anticipating with impatience, as one of pleasure.

However, her mother represented to her that she must go now, since she had promised, and being herself really too sincere a girl to feign a sudden headache—as we fear some young ladies would have done under the circumstances—she put on the small-crowned broad-brimmed hat, with its straw fringe and green ribbons, and waited the return of Mr. Hiram with his buggy; for they were to ride to the scene of action. And when he came back in a few moments to say that the horse was waiting at the door, and lost his speech for half a second in admiration of her, she warmed towards him enough to smile pleasantly, and to bound out of the house semblance of eagerness. She recovered her coldness and dislike however, in time to restrain herself from giving him the curiously wrought decoration of flowers which she had indeed been at much pains to prepare for him, and determined to dispose of it in some better way. Mr. Hiram had brought out a very dashing city equipage to take Miss Alice to the picnic, altogether beyond the fashion of the village of Bloomfield, and the stately horse, unblinked and uncured, waiting impatiently in his ribbon-like harness, and the vehicle with its wheels, the spokes of which were attenuated almost to nonentity renewed in her mind her prejudices.

And so the long and winding ride to the picnic ground, about which both had formed anticipations with considerable eagerness, proved a disappointment. Nature had done all she could to make it a pleasant ride. The road was beautiful—now wholly shaded by trees, which, bending over the narrow way, almost formed a continued arch—now running by the side of a gurgling brook, and now on a hill-top affording a fine view of a highly cultivated country. The day, too, was fine; the sun shone brightly, but the air was cool, and there was a slight breeze. But Mr. Hiram, with the same fatal misapprehension of his own character, had prepared sundry choice poetical extracts, and not only turned remarks, adapted, as he thought to the different points of road, in fact, he had driven over it several times, by way of rehearsal. The want of approbation with which these were received by his fair companion, did not deter him from running through his whole collection, and it may readily be imagined that his conversation was thus abominably foolish. At the same time he was conscious enough of his own artificial position to feel awkward and ill at ease by the side of even the young lady whom he had been longing so much to see.

It may be readily imagined, that, when they arrived the picnic ground, and had met and greeted other people, our heroine did not lose much time in separating from our hero, as if by accident. The day passed off as such days generally do, when the arrangements have been well made. The place which had been selected was admirably adapted to the purpose; shade trees and fruit trees and open places and rocks and water were scattered about in the vicinity. The company was agreeable and well matched. The provisions were ample and luxurious. At the proper time there was eating, at the proper time there was dancing, at the proper time there was singing, and at the proper time there was strolling about in small groups, or rather pairs; for two, we believe is hardly properly called a group. Miss Alice took as little notice as possible of Mr. Hiram, and yet it might have been observed that it was on his shawl that she sat so comfortably at dinner; that although she did not dance with him, she refused all other partners too, and did not dance at all; that when, after several refusals, the long continued urgent solicitations of the company induced her to sing, she sang the same song that had first attracted his notice in those ten minutes at the evening party the winter before; and that in all her excursions and strolls for flowers, either her companion was one of the other young ladies, or else she formed one of a party of four or five. We say these things might have been observed; but we did not say that any body observed them, unless, perhaps, it may have been Mr. Hiram Blunt himself. We are inclined to think that they did not escape his observation.

He was not, however, very happy. For while he had so effectually succeeded in making himself uncomfortable and disagreeable to her during their ride together, she, on the contrary, had but rendered herself more charming in his eyes. And so, although her coolness kept him rather at a distance, he could not help being somewhat pleased to see that she did nevertheless seem to retain a slight lurking regard for him. But as he could not account for her conduct by any other supposition than that she was trifling with him for the purpose of annoying him, he soon rather reluctantly concluded that he had better waste no more time about her and determined to turn his attention to other things.

Some children, who were striving to get a ladder up against a cherry-tree, afforded him a good opportunity to employ himself in a useful way, by aiding them. The ladder was very heavy, and he found it by no means so easy as he had imagined. It fell over his head and curiously caged his neck, but somewhat to the destruction of his hat, which he accordingly gave them up as a cherry basket. The exertion of lifting was fatal to his gloves, which split open in a most ghastly manner. The children were finely made happy in attaining their object, and were all mounted in the tree with some trouble, where, undoubtedly, they enjoyed the cherries obtained in this inconvenient way, a great deal more than if they had availed themselves of the abundant supplies which formed a part of the provisions for the picnic.

Just then he happened to meet one of the party, a lady of his acquaintance, who cast an appealing glance towards him. After a moment's conversation he ascertained that a special messenger had arrived by railroad from the city to inform her that sad news had been received by telegraph from a relation at a distance, and that it was desirable that she should start for the South with as little delay as possible. She was a good deal perplexed; for she wished to be able to leave the company quietly, and without disturbing their enjoyment by relating her own sorrow. There would be no cars bound toward the city until a late hour in the afternoon, and yet no time was to be lost. Mr. Hiram Blunt did not hesitate for a moment, on learning these circumstances to offer his horse and buggy to the lady and her messenger to convey them to the city; and his offer was most gratefully accepted. With his mind full of the matter to the exclusion of every thing else, he hastened to the spot where he left his horse; and, the operation of harnessing having been quickly performed, he returned and consigned the vehicle to the afflicted lady and her friend.

It is not worth while, however, to occupy much space with circumstantial narration of the details of all the little incidents which happened to our hero during the rest of the day. It is enough to say that he forgot his private feelings in the attempt to make himself generally useful; an attempt in which his practical knowledge and good sense secured him considerable success, and rendered him a most convenient and important member of the party. He had quite lost sight of Miss Alice, if he had not wholly forgotten her; and it was not until the sound of the whistle at the end of the day, the concerted signal, brought the party together again, that it flashed across his mind that he should be obliged to carry her home, and that he had sent away the vehicle which had brought them.

Nothing was to be done but to proceed with as much haste as possible to the nearest farm-house, and beg the use of some sort of wagon. This course he immediately adopted. Afraid of being too late, he rushed madly on, disregarding in his flight the mud and dirt of the road, in which his feet sank at every step. Having secured a country wagon and borrowed a hat of the farmer, he drove back to the picnic ground as furiously as he had left it. When he accordingly appeared before Miss Alice to claim her for the return, he presented quite a different appearance from that which had first greeted her. The lustre of his varnished shoes wholly obscured by the dust which covered them, his whole person piteously bespattered with mud, his gloves and cane thrown away, and his jaunty little straw hat supplanted by a rough, shaggy fur cap, she surely could not complain of the fopishness of his exterior. Nor was the rude vehicle in which he now proposed to place her likely to incur her disapprobation on the same score. And when, dismissing his poetry and his eloquence, he began to tell her the adventures through the day, and she saw more thoroughly his real character, she began very quickly to change her opinion of him. She began to find out the truth, and to think that his only mistake was one that should be the most pardonable in a lady's estimation—that he had forgotten himself, and sunk his own individuality in the effort to make himself agreeable to her; and although the effort had been as we have seen, ludicrously unsuccessful, although he had so far concealed his natural character as to seem a fool instead of a man of common sense, on account of the excellence of the motives in which it originated. And so they got along nicely together on their way home; and their ride was very different from that in the morning. And so Miss Alice, when the wagon arrived at the door, gave Mr. Hiram the curious decoration of flowers which she kept in her hand all day, a d went into the house.

"How did you get through the day with your conceited fop?" asked her mother.

"Conceited fop!" exclaimed Alice. She had forgotten that she had ever applied the expression to her companion, so entirely did it appear at variance with his character as she now understood it, and the impression that now remained upon her mind.

The experience of this day was enough to teach our hero that it was altogether superfluous to take so much trouble about his external appearance on his subsequent visits to Miss Alice; and she meanwhile had learned to like him in whatever guise he saw fit to appear, so that affairs are proceeding very well; and I do not know, Mr. Editor, how soon you may be favored with a box of wedding cake, accompanied by the card of "Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Blunt."

HUMBURG.—Humburg, which is in universal use, if not classically admissible in an English Dictionary, comes unquestionably from Hume of the Bog, a Scotch laird, (so called from his estate) who was celebrated in Edinburgh society, during the reign of William and Anne, for the marvelous tone of his stories, in which he indulged so commonly, that they became proverbial; and thus a very long shot was always designated "a regular Hume of the Bog." Hence, by simple contraction,

The Convict's Daughter.

In the annexed extract, M. Alloy details one of the most affecting incidents to be met with in the criminal annals. How few would imitate the example of this poor peasant girl.

During my stay at Rochefort, I was fond of lounging in the sombre avenues of the public garden. Seated on a terrace that overlooks the port, I regarded the coupled transports that draw the heavy weights, and purehas, by the sweat of their brow, the advantage of escaping for a few hours the poisonous atmosphere of the prison. I had remarked a young girl who had passed and repassed before me, and continued looking with anxious curiosity at the rope yard. The young girl wore the Vendean costume. She was seated on a bench underneath the trees, and there remained in a reverie. I approached and recognized her, having seen her the evening before at the house of the gardener, and had learnt the object of her journey. The young girl was to marry, but her father was at the galleys.

Eutrope was the betrothed of the peasant girl, and knew the crime of his future father-in-law. Inhabiting the same village, he was aware how much he would lose in respect by marrying the daughter of a convict; but Tienette was beloved and passion concealed from Eutrope the consequence of the marriage. He wished to marry the young girl, but he was desirous that no mention should be made of this father, who in the eyes of the law, was dead, who had no further control over his daughter, and whose remembrance he must destroy.

Tienette loved her father, and her affection for him redoubled from the contempt with which others visited the author of her being. She wished him to sign a consent to her marriage, and give her his blessing. Eutrope had long opposed Tienette's wish. He still refused the step she was anxious to take, and it was only with regret he had undertaken the journey to Rochefort. Eutrope was a good looking youth, who had frank and open manners, and who pleased at the first approach. It was not long ere he joined us. I served as interpreter to the sentiments of Tienette. I said to Eutrope that a father is never guilty in the eyes of his daughter; that there are no laws, no judges, no jury, no assize that can release us from the ties of nature; and that the filial piety of Tienette would be a valuable pledge to him of the virtues of his wife.

Tienette said nothing, but her eyes were fixed on the countenance Eutrope. She watched his every movement, as if to catch an acquiescence in her wishes. Eutrope listened to me with downcast eyes. The moment I had done speaking, without replying, without the faintest objection, he took Tienette's hand, and the two lovers directed their steps towards the prison. I followed them, and the young girl, who apparently regarded my presence as a support against the hesitation of Eutrope, encouraged me not to quit them.

The old convict, however, had been sick for some days and was no longer at the prison, but at the hospital. We silently traversed the long court and ascended the flight of steps. At the entrance to the wards violently agitated the poor girl. Her cheeks were pale, and heart must have been painfully rent. Eutrope and his affianced were conducted to the bed of the convict. A guard repelled me, and I could only follow at a distance the details of this picture. At the foot of the convict's bed was Eutrope. The young girl approached, with a movement of fear which she could not control. The convict raised his weary head, turned a dying look and allowed a smile to pass between his teeth, whose whiteness contrasted with his bronzed complexion. A guard had conducted the two lovers, and had remained as a witness of the scene. A kind Sister of Charity supported the patient. He took the pen presented to him, looked at the act drawn up in advance, and held up, he placed at the foot his dishonored name. Stretching towards Tienette his fleshless arms, he drew her to his bosom. The movement he made agitated his chain, one of the links of which Eutrope had taken up, and was regarding it with a stupefied look. Tienette seized this moment to glide her hand unseen beneath the counterpane. A look which she fixed on the guard, who had turned away, betrayed, luckily to me alone, the offering the young girl left her father.

After half an hour's interview, Eutrope, who seemed ill at ease, made a sign to Tienette, and the young girl gave the farewell kiss to her father. On retiring, one of the links of the chain that retained the convict to his bed of suffering, came in contact with the robe of the Vendean girl, and a tear dropped upon the rusted irons. The young couple retired slowly, their head bent down. Near the door, Tienette took a last glimpse at the old man; and perhaps at the moment her heart was invoking heaven to abridge the tortures of her sire, by calling him from the asylum in which he was suffering to that in which we can pardon.

When the two lovers had descended the hospital steps, the young girl clung round Eutrope's neck.

"This step will bring us happiness," she said to him.

The young couple then entered the hospital chapel, made a short prayer there, saluted me with gratitude, and mounted a chase that conducted them to their village.

Yes, God will bless thee, poor girl, for not abandoning the author of thy being—for not thinking that all was finished between him and thee, simply because he was guilty; and thy children will render to virtue the homage which thou hast not feared to honor a criminal father!

A GROOM WELL INSTALLED.—A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, writing from Rome, gives the following extraordinary account of the progress of an English jockey:

Mr. Ward—or Baron Ward—has made himself somewhat conspicuous lately and a few notices about him may be interesting. He is an English groom, who was sent to Lucca some ten years ago with some horses to the Duke of Lucca. Being a smart fellow, he was kept in the employ by the head groom, and after, himself succeeded to the vacancy of chief of the stables. The household of the Duke of Lucca was miserably mismanaged, and Ward proposed to the Duke to keep a larger number of horses of the first quality, carriages, etc., for a smaller sum than was expended. This proposal was resisted by the nobles about the court, who plundered the Duke, and it was a question whether the groom would not be sent about his business for his discretion; however, His Highness having decided upon trying Mr. Ward's plan, for a few months discovered that he was better provided than formerly, and at much smaller cost. But our jockey having once got seated in the saddle, was not to be stopped by trifles. He proposed a similar arrangement for deal housekeeping, and Mrs. Ward took charge of the kitchen, linen, furniture and clothes. The change was again advantageous to the Royal Duke, who lived better at less cost. The influence of Mr. Ward became paramount in the stables and housekeeping, and would have satisfied a moderate ambition, but our jockey now aimed at higher offices—he complained to his royal master that he could not continue to keep the horses or supply the dinners unless the funds were regularly supplied to him—and, therefore, that he must take charge of the public treasury, which was in a deplorable condition. Here the acuteness of a Yorkshire jockey was pitted against court intrigue and aristocratic prejudice. Ward was in a fair way of losing all; he was obliged to leave Lucca, his wife and a friend having managed to keep up correspondence with the Duke, who was partial to him. Ward secretly proceeded to Vienna, while he was supposed to be taking baths for his health. He presented his case to the Arch-Duke John, showing the financial ruin of the Duchy. He got the support from that quarter, returned to Lucca, banished his enemies, and became Minister of Finance, and, in short, of everything, as all the others were merely his nominees.

About that time the political agitation of 1847 pervaded Italy, and Mr. Ward, who had superintended the education of her to the Duchy, found that young man much more manageable than his father, whom he therefore induced to abdicate. He bargained the sale of Lucca to the Duke of Tuscany, and immediately afterwards took possession of the Duchy of Parma.

Running It into the Ground.

We once had a friend whose only weakness was a mania for marrying an heiress. Now our friend Tom was not the worst man in existence, yet this insatiable thirst after young ladies with taxable property appeared to absorb all the better traits of his character.

A few years since we were taking an early morning walk through what is now called "Court End," when we met our friend engaged with an elderly man in examining a square of vacant "lots" in the vicinity of the Fifth Avenue.

"Well, sir," said Tom, as his companion turned to leave, "if I succeed in certain arrangements, you may have the whole lot at three shillings per load."

"Done," said the man, and as he left, we walked up to congratulate our friend upon the success of his negotiation.

"These lots," said Tom, as he grasped our hands with the energy of a man who had just succeeded in a great enterprise, "belong to a young lady to whom I am now paying court, and I have just sold to Smith, the mason, the building sund on 'em for three shillings per load."

The last time we saw Tom, he was laying out (on paper) a grand public park in the vicinity of some unimproved property belonging to another young lady.

FELADELFY.—"How do you spell Feladelfy?" asked a small city grocer of his partner one day, as he was sprinkling sand upon a letter which he was about to dispatch to the "City of Brotherly Love."

"Why, Fe la, Fe la, del Feladelfy,"

"Then I've got it right," said the partner (in ignorance as well as in business), "I thought I might have made a mistake."

The Man who ought not to Emigrate

The man who can not shave without hot water, or pull off his boots without a boot-jack; the man who can not get up without a glass of pale ale in the morning, or go to bed without a "bashed lobster," or deviled bones; the man who has never carried any thing heavier than his cane, or cut anything stronger than his beer; the man whose only sowing has been limited to his wild oats, and his only reaping to Eisenberg cutting twice a year his corn; the man who has never handled any other bill but a tailor's, and only knows what a spade is by seeing it in a pack of cards, the man whose only knowledge of "hedging" has been derived from the race-course, and of "harrowing" from a Victoria melodrama; the man who only cares for a horse as something to bet upon, and looks upon sheep as "creatures from the country" that are fleeced at carte; the man who imagines a bull walks on two legs like those he has seen on the Stock Exchange, and whose skill in shooting has been restricted to a few shots at the moon; the man who merely knows a bank and a rake from what he has seen at a rouge-et-noir table; the man whose footing in society has always been upon the very best polished leather boots, and whose longest walk in life has been thro' the Insolvent debtor's Court; the man who has never known what it is to earn a dinner, or to enjoy one without French wines, the man who would think himself degraded if he was seen carrying a parcel:

Such a man of all others ought not to emigrate. Better far for him to lounge and lol on sofas, and sip, and smoke, and yawn, in a country that can appreciate him, doing no harder work than digging occasionally in the morning papers, or in the gold districts of his mother's pocket, than to carry those same qualities to a distant land where they would only be thrown away, like early pulp before Quakers.—Such a man, we repeat it, ought to be the very last in England to emigrate.—Punch.

What Punctuality Would Do.

If Jerry Dilatory would pay us the dollar he owes us for a small job we did for him two years ago, we would pay Mr. Drygoods the dollar we owe him; he would pay Sam Vulcan for shoeing his horse; Sam would pay Bob Charcoal for his coal; Bob would pay Joe Axeman for his last two days' chopping; Joe would pay Jack Grist for his last bag of cornmeal; Mr. Grist would pay Dr. Esculapian for the medicine that came so near getting down his child; Doc, would pay widow Broom for her two last days' washing; she would pay Bill Grocer the dollar she owes him; Grocer would pay "Coke upon Littleton" his fee for counsel in the case of the State of Kentucky vs. Bill Grocer; "Coke upon Littleton" could then go and pay Tim Haystack the dollar he owes him on the hay he bought of him last week; and Tim is such an honest soul that we know he would come right in and pay us the dollar he owes us on subscription, and then we would buy a chicken, (provided we could find it to buy,) a dozen eggs, a half-bushel of cornmeal to make a "dodger," and we, ourselves, individually, our wife, and our "toddling-gee things," would have a feast of "fat things," and we would have a dime in our pocket, "baby in the cradle, and a pretty wife to rock it."

But because Jerry Dilatory is not honest enough to pay—not one of these debts can be paid, and we can not have the feast of "fat things" at all. Ah, Jerry Dilatory! You are the cause of all this trouble. You prevent all this happiness. It requires all our forbearance to keep from giving you "particular Jesse."

We would feel as though we would like to take a scythe and mow down a ten-acre field of such men. They are exercises on society, that mar its beauty and clog its energies, destroy its peace and waste its substance.

Still men are so, and we suppose they will stay so a little while yet; but we do hope there is a better time coming—a time when to owe a man, and not pay him, will be considered akin to stealing—when all will adopt the Scriptural motto, "Owe no man anything."

THE SICKNESS IN PUTNAM COUNTY, INDIANA.—A private letter from Professor Larrabee to Mr. House, of the Methodist Book Concern, dated Indiana, Asbury, University, Greencastle, Oct., 5th, says:

"It is, as I wrote yesterday, not a fatal sickness in this place. My son continues very low, and cannot be left by me. Nearly whole families are being swept away. One of the students has just fallen. Professor Wheeler lies very low. Our best physician has fallen. The disease is flux, followed by typhoid fever, and both wholly unmanageable.—Californian (Gazette)

Remem r

That from and after the 30th of Sept. that the Lebanon Post can be sent to any post office in this county free of postage; and to any post office in the State at the law rate of 3¢ per quarter, or 13 cents the year. Now who will not subscribe to their own paper?

Come up and subscribe for the Post, and get your friends and neighbors to subscribe. We have not near got a living list yet. Remember, also, that we propose to send it to clubs of 10 for $15, or $1.50 to each subscriber; or to clubs of 20 for $25, or $1.25 to each subscriber. Clubs must be paid for in advance. We make no boasts about our paper, but we are willing to let it sink or swim on its own merits or demerits. If you do not like our paper do not take it, but do not say: "I like the paper very well, and would be very glad to see it continue," and then turn right around and borrow your neighbor's paper.

We have discovered a vast amount of indigent poverty, since our sojourn in this county; men who no one would suspect of being "hard run;" who, in fact are reputed wealthy; and yet, astonishing to relate, they are not able to take their own paper! We would go in to levy a penny tax to support such men.

The Tea Party.

We were at the Tea Party given by the ladies in this place, on last Thursday. We will say a few words about it, in order that those who were deprived of the pleasure of being present, may form some faint idea of the affair.

In the first place the company were ushered into the Court Room, where two long tables groined under the sumptuous and plentiful repast. There were the Mrs. S's, Mrs. R., Mrs. C. and other ladies, attending to the wants of the numerous guests who crowded the festive board. When every one had ate of the substantial, they adjourned to the upper story, or what we shall term for the present, the "Bower of Beauty." Here our pen fails us, in attempting to give anything like an adequate idea of the splendor of the scene which presented itself.

In the first room were the tastefully decorated Post Office and Fortune-tellers Table. The first kept by Miss McE. and Miss E., the latter by Miss S. and Miss E. There was many calls for letters, for no other purpose than to get a glimpse at the fair mistresses of that department; and many a fortune sought for the same purpose—aye and some who would rather have heard their fortunes told by the coral lips of the fair fortune-tellers than from the "fortune wheel"—but we are divulging secrets, and for fear of their ire, we will retreat into the next room.

Here we were surrounded by such a display of splendor, that our senses became confused, and it required several seconds before we could look around us with composure. We do not know where to commence in this room to tell how it was arranged, (for we do not intend to attempt a description.) Right in front as we enter, we see the table presided over by Miss S. and Miss H.; to our right is a table, behind which we see Miss H., Miss S., and Miss B.; to our left is a table, with Miss M. and Miss H. presiding over it. These tables were decorated with the most consummate taste, with flowers and the most costly and elegant ornaments which the hand of art could furnish. Here were to be procured the most delicious refreshments, to please the most dainty taste; with bouquets formed of the rarest flowers.

We shall say a few words about the assemblage, and leave the rest to the imagination of the reader. We do think that if one single person had been added to the throng, it would have marred the enjoyment of the evening; for those who were present enjoyed themselves to the fullest meaning of the term, although it did appear crowded a little, at times.

There were ladies present, of every class of beauty—the brunette and the blond; the tall commanding form swimming majestically through the intricacies of the crowded rooms; and the round, luxurious form of medium height, moving with equal, if not more attractive grace, from point to point. There were many married ladies present, and the assemblage and we had the ungallantry to think, that the young, unmarried ladies had to look well to their laurels on the score of beauty and elegance. The papers of Louisville may boast of their fair, etc., but we defy them to evince more taste and elegance, or give more general satisfaction, than did the fair ladies of our place, on last Thursday night.

There will be a Whig Barbecue, at or near this place on next Saturday. Several eloquent orators are expected to address the assembly; among whom are: HON. C. A. MOREHEAD, W. B. THOMSON, JOHN BELL, J. L. HEIN, WM. R. GIBSON, and others. A big turn out of everybody is expected.

There will be a PERCE and KING Pole raised in this place, on Monday next. The pole will be raised about 11 o'clock. GEN. PILCHER will address the crowd from the foot of the pole; Hon. J. O. C. BRECKENRIDGE has been invited to attend and address the assembly. Everybody is invited to pull at the ropes.

Mrs. Hood sent us, yesterday, two heads of Catfish as specimens, for which she will please except our thanks. After all of the outer leaves had been cut away and the stocks with them, leaving nothing but the smooth round head. One of them weighed sixteen pounds, and the other twelve. If these can be beat, we would like to get hold of those which beat them.

Our exchanges are so filled up with party politics, election returns and speculations as to the result of the present race, that we can scarcely take up sufficient interesting news to fill our columns. The election will soon be over, and then we will have a good time again.

Our esteemed friend H. M. McCARTHY, paid us a flying visit on last week. He looks hale and healthy. He has done more for the advancement of the "mud y city"—Paducah—since the establishment of the Journal, than any six men in it. He tells us that experience has proven to him that a printing office can accomplish much for the advancement of a town or county, unless a system of advertising is resorted to, by the business men therein; Merchants, Mechanics, &c.

J. W. HAZEN, a particular friend of ours, and recently one of the editors of the Daily Evansville Times, has fought out Mr. BAYMILLER, his associate, and will hereafter conduct that paper alone. We wish him success.

That BEET.—MR. PETER RAY, presented to us on last week, an immense Beet. It measures 24 inches in circumference, 13 in length, and weighs 9 pounds. If any one has a beet that can beat this beet, we would like to see it.

JOHN SUTER, Esq., brought us last week, a specimen of the corn raised on his "poor, worn-out land." The ear now lying before us measures 11 inches in length, 10 inches in girth, and has 20 rows upon it; each row contains 50 tall grains—making 1000 kernels upon this one mammoth ear. It weighed 24 lbs.

The appointment of GEN. PILCHER to speak at Springfield, on next Tuesday, the 26th has been changed. He will address the people of Washington county, at Willsburg, on that day.

Our friend H. JOHNSON, of this place, presented us on yesterday with two Red Sweet Potatoes. They were only 1 lb. things. One weighed 3 pounds 1 ounce; the other 2 pounds and three quarters. They measure twelve inches in circumference. Bring on your heaters.

MR. A. J. GREEN, of Springfield has purchased the place of J. D. my, well known as "Dairy's Well." The waters of this well possess very beneficial medicinal qualities, and invalids will be pleased to learn that there will be preparations made for their accommodation, as soon as possible. Accommodations for pleasure parties, picnics, fishing excursions, &c., will also be made. We heard that there was a Mr. DICKEN, from Fredericktown, associated with Mr. G., in the establishment, but do not know how true it is.

A widow advertises in the Boston Transcript that she is very much in want of a husband—very much indeed. She says she is twenty-six years of age, rather good looking, kind disposition, of good education, and worth ten thousand dollars, would like a husband who has energy and enterprise, and is in every sense of the word a man, an honest man; whether polished or unpolished.

New York, Oct. 14, M.

A large meeting of the Whigs was held last night to give an expression in regard to the recent outrages in Cuba upon American rights. Resolutions were adopted which coincided in the language of Mr. Clay to the American Minister at Spain, that we cannot allow a transfer of the Island to any European power. There were fully five thousand persons at the meeting.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 14, P. M.

The New Orleans mails have arrived. The papers are filled with accounts of an indignation meeting relative to Cuba and the Crescent City. Dates from the city of Mexico are to the 10th inst., report the reception of four propositions for the transportation of the Government had named commissioners to examine the propositions for the route, and make contracts.

A new Ministry has been formed. The troubles in Cardenas continue. Texas dates of 3d inst., report the Indians again becoming troublesome.

A Troup and German meeting was to be held in Mobile on the 7th inst., and several meetings have already been held in the interior. The Mobile Tribune says this movement is gaining strength in Alabama.

The Mobile Tribune, and the Savannah Republican, say that Cabell and Ward, Whigs, are elected in Florida.

WASHINGTON Oct. 10.

The President has appointed Captain French of the United States army and Lieut. Hunter of the navy as Commissioners to proceed to Mexico to examine Gardn's mines if they exist.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD WEST. The energetic vigor characteristic of all operations of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has so far advanced the work of laying their route west of Fairmont, Virginia, that by the 20th of November, as we are informed, only fifteen miles of road will be to finish. The fifteen miles will be the distance immediately east of the mouth of Grave Creek, lying between it and Loudenslager's Mill thus on the 20th proximo the time between Baltimore and Wheeling will be reduced to twenty-three hours, and the price of travel correspondingly lowered.

We hear that at Petbone's tunnel, on the line between Fairmont and Wheeling, the fore-hand of engineering exploit achieved over Kinkwood tunnel, in Pennsylvania, has been surpassed, and that locomotive engines are daily employed in surmounting the ridge through which Petbone's tunnel passes at a rise of six hundred feet to the mile, or one foot in about every eight feet ten inches! Undoubtedly such a feat has been neither performed nor attempted elsewhere in the world.

On the Parkersburg branch from Three Forks, the surveys have all been made, and at some spots the contractors are already at work.—National Intelligencer, New York, Wednesday.

HOBBS AGAIN.—A London letter says:

"American skill has once more triumphed in England; and in this manner: The directors of a well known Insurance Office, in Moorgate street, had assembled at their rooms last week to hold an important annual meeting. When the books and papers of the company were called for, the Secretary could not find the key of the large vault where they were kept. After an unsuccessful search, Mr. Chubb, the maker of the large iron door and he was sent for, and was asked if he had a key that would open the lock. He again replied in the negative, and rather indignantly withal, at the intimation that his celebrated locks could be picked! The directors asked what was to be done? Mr. Chubb answered that the only method by which the books and papers could be procured was to cut the door down. The directors would not consent to such a proposition, and Mr. Chubb left the premises. A messenger was despatched to Cleapside for the American Hobbs, who sent one of his workmen, with instructions to take an impression in wax of the key-hole of the lock. The man departed, and in a few minutes returned, with the impression. Mr. Hobbs then selected a few simple instruments, and accompanied his workman to the Insurance Office. After operating upon Chubb's lock ten minutes only, the bolt was turned, the door was opened, and all the books and papers were placed before the Board of Directors and to their utter astonishment.

OUTRAGE ON A STEAMBOAT.—During the trip of the Prairie City from St. Louis to this city a most revolting outrage was perpetrated on the person of a woman by the name of Sarah Pierce, who with her husband, had taken deck passage for Cincinnati. On the arrival of the boat at this city, the husband Wm. Pierce, gave information to the police, and Master Ronald, and officer Gilmore went to the boat to arrest the villain, but he had fled.

From the statement of the husband, it appears that while he was in the forward part of the boat the wretch, on some one else belonging to the boat, went aft and outraged the woman who was in a very delicate state, and greatly endangering her life. It was the opinion of two physicians, who were passengers on the boat, and at ended the poor woman, her chances of recovery are very doubtful. One of the engineers stated that the perpetrator of the deed was Wm. Steenson, the watchman who shipped on board at Cincinnati. While the boat was in the canal he slipped off or hid himself.

Capt. Robinson delayed his boat some time in order to offer every facility to the police to find the man, and it is due to the credit of the boat that he be ferreted out and speedily brought to justice. The outrage was committed last Tuesday night, and the villain was suffered to remain undiscovered until yesterday. The Captain bears the reputation of being an exceedingly clever gentleman, and could not have been aware of the commission of this crime upon the person of one of his passengers. The woman is a native of Paducah, Ky., and has been married 3 years.—Lou. Cour. 15th.

BEAUTIFUL DESIGN.—A SIGN.—We noticed on the great post in front of the National Telegraph office, Main street, a couple of paintings or sketches on wire gauze, representing Jupiter sending forth his lightnings. The painting is surmounted by beautiful gilt black letters, the whole, as a matter of course, is the handiwork of the clever and skillful artist, G. W. Miller, Esq. The sketch like the forked lightning, appears and disappears at intervals. In one position on the street it can be plainly seen, but as you approach or recede, it becomes first invisible and then quite apparent to the vision.—Lou. Cour.

DEAD LETTERS.—During the last quarter one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one letters were returned to the Dead Letter Office, in the Post Office Department. These contained $10,659 in the aggregate. Recently, about one million and a third of such letters were publicly destroyed, a bonfire being kindled with them on the Hill. We yesterday saw a large number of the enormous articles transmitted through the mails, the majority of which will never come into the possession of those to whom they were addressed. Among those may be mentioned a horse-shoe, a ginger cake, the postage on which was $2 10; a donation to a church, being a small cake in a paper box; a quilt, a New Year's present, or a bachelor's Dutch pattern to a child's dress; a pin cushion, the strap of a bottom of a glass lamp, the postage $4, the intrinsic worth as many cents; a zinc frame belonging to a galvanic battery postage $17; a stone weighing two pounds addressed to a gentleman by "Eliza" as a sample of his generosity; a pair of men's boots sent to a lady; a large bottle of salve; and a bundle containing a coarse shirt, a pair of blue stockings and a razor.

SUDDEN AND SIFULAR DEATH.—A death occurred at the New Market this morning under circumstances of a most singular character.—Miss Sarah Jane Bolton, while passing through the market recently lost her pocket book. It was picked up soon by a German woman, named Mrs. King, who returned it to the owner. She opened the pocket book, examined it, declared that Mrs. King had taken $10 of the money.—The latter seemed much confused and denied it. Mrs. Bolton then threatened that she would have her arrested and searched, when Mrs. King fell dead at her feet. The death was as sudden as has ever been known. Mrs. King was the wife of a steamboat man, and the mother of several children.—St. Louis News, Wednesday.

MYSTERIES OF THE PAST.—An old copper mine of extraordinary richness has recently been discovered on what is called the Hill Vain in the Lake Superior country. Certain circumstances recently brought to light by its discovery indicate that it was worked long before the discovery of America by Columbus. The richness of the mine may be imagined from the fact that Mr. Mendelbaum, the manager in causing it to be explored, had a mass of copper which weighed 2,390 lbs., removed from the surface of the vein. There is certainly much mystery connected with these ancient traces of mining operations discovered from time to time in the copper region of Lake Superior.

NEW YORK TYPOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.—This society during the last six months has invested three thousand dollars in stocks, and paid $479 for relief of members, who number about 176. Its library contains 150 volumes. Mr. Geo. Mather, one of the founders of the society, and its late President, will be presented on Saturday, with a service of silver plate by his fellow members.

NOVEL PROPOSITION.—Genin the latter of New York, proposes to erect a bridge for foot passengers across Broadway, opposite his store, to enable the persons to cross without charge from the numerous vehicles. It is to be made of iron sixteen feet high, five feet wide, and reached by stairs of three feet. It will be of oriental style, and a very ornamental structure. The proposal has been referred to the "committee on streets."

MORE FACILITIES.—The New Foundland Electric Telegraph Co., says the Journal of Commerce, have purchased at Philadelphia, a steam propeller yacht, with which it is purposed to board the European steamers bound to the United States while passing in the vicinity of Newfoundland and procure from them the foreign news, for transmission over their wires for the newspaper press, and by this means anticipate the arrival of the steamers.

Baron Humboldt celebrated his eighty-third birthday on the 14th. The "Nestor of Science" is in excellent health, and is engaged, daily, for some hours, on a 4th volume of the "Cosmos."

For the Lebanon Post.

AT A MEETING of Salem Lodge No. 42, on Tuesday, October 19th, caused by the death of ELIAS F. SHACKLEFORD, a brother beloved of our order, the following resolutions are submitted and approved:

1. Resolved, That in the removal from our midst of a very dear brother, whose presence enlivened all. Our Lodge has lost one of the most cherished of its brotherhood; and can but feel it to be a dispensation, bringing real sorrow to every heart, and most afflictive to us as a body.

2. Resolved, That in token of respect for our deceased brother—his funeral be attended with the usual ceremonies and solemnities of our Order.

3. Resolved, That to his wife and little ones, who lament in lonely widowhood and orphanage, we tender our most heartfelt condolence, and that whilst she can with pious faith, look to the God of widow and orphan. Yet there is much in our Order upon which they can rely with confidence.

4. Resolved, That the members of the Lodge wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

5. Resolved, That a copy of the above resolutions be handed to the wife of the deceased brother.

6. Resolved, That the above proceeding be handed to the editor of the Lebanon Post, for publication.

Special Notices.

"DIGEST" Such is the true meaning of the word "Digest," or of the two Greek words from which it is derived. This is the significant and appropriate title of the True Digestive Fluid or Gastric Juice, prepared by Dr. J. S. Houghton, of Philadelphia, from the fourth stomach of the Ox, for the cure of Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It is Nature's own remedy for an indolent stomach. No art of man can equal its curative powers. It renders good eating perfectly consistent with health. See advertisement in another part of the paper.

WISTAR'S BALM OF WILD CHERRY imparts new vigor to vital action, and relieves the system by opening the pores of the skin, and promoting the secretion of humors. Its action is sudorific, sedative and expectorant, by opening the pores, allaying irritation, and by rendering the expulsion of mucus matter easy.

Those who take the Balm will feel immediate relief from the distressing irritations that accompany affections of the respiratory organs. The pores have been closed, the Balm opens them. The lungs suffer from irritation, the irritation is soothed; the pulse is violent and feverish, they are softened, and the mucus membrane is relieved of its gorgement with rapidity and ease. All by the use of this delightful remedy.

Another Scientific Wonder. GREAT CURE FOR

DYSPEPSIA! DR. J. S. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN,

THE TRUE DIGESTIVE FLUID, OR

GASTRIC JUICE!

Prepared from Rennet, or the Fourth Stomach of the Ox, after directions of Baron J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D. Philadelphia, Pa. "DIGEST" Such is the true meaning of the word, PEPsin. This is the chief element of the great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Saliva of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving and Stimulating Agent of the Stomach and Intestines. It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, thus forming a true Digestive Fluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect substitute for it.

This is Nature's own Remedy for an indolent Stomach. No art of man can equal its curative powers. It renders good eating perfectly consistent with health. See advertisement in another part of the paper.

Scientific Evidence. The following Scientific Evidence upon which this Remedy is based is the highest degree of scientific and reliable.

Call on the agent and get a Descriptive Circular, gratis, giving a large amount of scientific evidence, from leading Animal Chemists; Dr. Combe's Physiology of Digestion; Dr. Pereira on Food and Diet; Dr. John W. Draper's New York University; Prof. Dunglison's Physiology; Dr. J. S. Houghton, M. D., sole proprietor, Philadelphia, Pa. Copy-righted and Trade mark secured.

PEPSIN in Fluid and Powder. DR. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN is prepared in powder and in Fluid, Form—also in prescription vials for the use of Physicians. The powder will be sent by mail free of P. stage, in one of our bottles to Dr. Houghton, Philadelphia.

LEADS RE TIES!—Every bottle of the genuine Pepsin bears the written signature of J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D., sole proprietor, Philadelphia, Pa. Copy-righted and Trade mark secured.

Sold by all Druggists and dealers in Medicine. Price ONE DOLLAR per bottle.

PROFECTION OF THE LEANON POST

I enough has been said and wrote upon the merits of a newspaper, arising out of having a newspaper in a County, I will not, therefore, enlarge upon his point. Feeling convinced that the people of Marion wish an establishment of the kind in their county, I have consented, after many solicitation, to make a trial; let us see what will be the result. I had partially made my arrangements to move upon the Ohio river, but if the people of Marion will show, by subscribing liberally for the "POST," that they want a paper, we will succumb to their wishes, and settle amongst them.

THE POST will be strictly NUTRIMENTAL in Poetry and Religion in all things else perfectly INDEPENDENT expressing freely the views of the Editor and his Correspondents on the pressing events of the day, local matters, &c. I am decidedly in favor of Rail Road communication in Kentucky, being fully convinced that in that way alone can our business be kept up with the advancement of the age and better off State. I am particularly in favor of a communication of this kind across the State, and thus giving us a direct intercourse with the great southern mart; being convinced that such an intercourse would redound to the benefit of all classes, and that the proposed route through Marion County is the best location in the State, and believe firmly that it can and will be run. We will advocate, conditionally, to the best of our ability, this truly beneficial enterprise and so look the points of others.

THE POST will be dedicated to News, Agriculture, Tales, Poetry, Anecdotes, &c. &c. Nothing shall appear in its columns of a baneful or demoralizing tendency to the mind; in a word, it shall be a FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

THE POST will be issued weekly, on every Wednesday, on an imperial sheet, at $2 per year in advance, $2 50 if paid in six months, or $3 if the payment is delayed until the end of the year. Wishing to commence on the last of April or the first of May, I would be gratified to receive all my subscribers, crowded with names before that time.

W. W. JACK. Editor and Proprietor.

PROSP CTUS OF ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

NEAR LEBANON, MARION CO., KY.

This Literary Institution, founded in 1851, by the late REV. WILLIAM EVANS, and subsequently conducted for many years by the Rev. J. S. Houghton, is now under the superintendence of the Right Rev. Bishop of Louisville, who will always take means to provide a suitable Faculty for carrying on with a view to promote the greatest public good. Under the auspices of its previous conductors, the Institution has been instrumental in widely diffusing the blessings of a religious education throughout Kentucky and the adjoining States.

The steadiness of its patronage has been a constant evidence of the public approval. The beauty and salubrity of the situation, as well as the spaciousness and commodiousness of the College Buildings, are generally known. It will be the constant aim of the Faculty to adopt, so far as a practical plan, the plan which it was so well and so usefully conducted by its enlightened and benevolent Founder.

Improved Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla.

Remember, this is the only TRUE and ORIGINAL article.

This medicine, when used according to directions, WILL CURE WITHOUT FAIL.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, Cancer, Tumors, Eruptions of the Skin, Erysipelas, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ring Worm, or Tetter, Scald Head, Rheumatism, Pains in the Bones or Joints, Old Sores and Ulcers, Eruptions of the Glans, Syphilis, Dyspepsia, Salt Rheum, Diseases of the Kidneys, Loss of appetite, Diseases arising from the use of Mercury, Pain in the Side and Shoulders, General Debility, Dropsy, Lumbago, Jaundice, and Constipation. The best Female Medicine known.

Dr. Cassott's Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla.

THE SHAKER PREPARED "YELLOW DOCK" AND THE "RED HONOUR" SARSAPARILLA, are the invaluable remedies from which "Dr. Cassott's Improved Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla" is formed; and the laboratory of Dr. Cassott has given us the virtues of the roots in their perfection. His preparation contains all the restorative properties of the roots, combined and concentrated in their utmost strength and efficacy.

Experiments were made in the manufacture of this medicine, until it was found that it could not be further improved.

Accordingly, we find it resorted to, almost universally, in cases of Syphilis, scrofula, and Cutaneous complaints for general prostration of all the vital powers, and all these tormenting diseases of the skin so trying to the patience and so injurious to the health.

SONNET.

The Windy wind is rushing through the trees
And tearing one by one their leaves away;
While piteously unto the howling breeze
They stretch their naked limbs, as they would pray
That he would spare some old and faithful leaf,
A sad memorial of the spring time brief;
But no—he sweeps them wildly on his path,
Nor heeds he taught the trees low-spoken prayer.
And tyrant-like, in madness and in wrath,
Scatters their withered foliage to the air.
That Windy wind—how like it is to death!
And we, how like the leaves in tempest strewed!
And they who suddenly mourn our spirit flown
Sigh, like the trees denuded by its breath, H.

Antium in Parbo.

The more we help others to bear their burdens,
The lighter our own will be.

Surely some people know themselves;
They never think of anything else.

When a man calls to see another during the busiest portion of the day, it is not worth while for him to stay more than an hour after he has told you all he knows.

"Always be prepared for death." This was the admonition of a Missouri elder, as he placed in his son's belt two bowie knives and a pair of revolvers.

If brevity is the soul of wit, the editor of the Missouri Clarion must be one of the funniest fellows in this country. He measures four feet three inches with both boots on.

When the million applaud you, seriously ask yourself what harm you have done;
when they censure you, what good!

We should act with as much energy as those who expect everything from themselves;
—and we should pray with as much earnestness as those who expect everything from God.

There is a paradox in pride—it makes some men ridiculous, but prevents others from becoming so.

If rich, it is easy enough to conceal our wealth; but, if poor, it is not quite so easy to conceal our poverty. We shall find that it is less difficult to hide a thousand guineas, than one hole in our coat.

Suicide sometimes proceeds from cowardice, but not always; for cowardice sometimes prevents it; since as many live because they are afraid to die, as die because they are afraid to live.

Of all the marvelous works of the Deity, perhaps there is nothing that angels behold with such supreme astonishment as a proud man.

He that can please nobody, is not so much to be pitied, as he that nobody can please.

Two things, well considered, would prevent many quarrels; first, to have it well ascertained whether we are not disputing about terms rather than things; and secondly, to examine whether that on which we differ, is worth contending about.

He that can charm a whole company by singing, and at the age of thirty, has no cause to regret so dangerous a gift, is a very extraordinary man, and I may add, a very fortunate man.

Men are born with two eyes, but with one tongue, in order that they should see twice as much as they say; but, from their conduct one would suppose that they were born with two tongues, and one eye; for those talk the most, who have observed the least, and obtrude their remarks upon every thing, who have seen into nothing.

Involuntary Respect for Property.

Every one knows the domineering nature of the sentiment of personal property.
Even those who have never owned an acre or a dollar unclaimed by their physical necessities, confess the truth by their aspiration as much as their lucky fellows do by their experience.
And we all alike equally confess it by the involuntary homage we pay to rich men. I admit that I have been taught a great deal better. I admit that I should be very much ashamed to be caught toadying a rich man, and that I could say things on the baseness of such conduct which would really stir my blood. But all this is dramatic. I am acting a part, the part assigned me by public opinion. For in private,
I feel an inactive respect for property. It does in some mysterious, but infallible way embalm the possessor, so that while my theory bids me defy him, I never come into his presence but with "bated breath, and colder than a fillet." The treachery is universal. I have heard sermons on this subject, which left no doubt on my mind that the preacher had completely conquered his natural weakness; but no, you have only to observe his daily intercourse with his flock to discover that it was the most transparent talk only, and that the beautiful manners he described belonged to an entirely different world from this.—Henry James.

An act, by which we make one friend, and one enemy, is a losing game; because revenge is a much stronger principle than gratitude.

The excesses of our youth are drafts upon our old age, payable with interest, about thirty years after date.

None are so seldom found alone, and are so soon tired of their own company, as those coxcombs who are on the best terms with themselves.

Sensibility would be a good portress,
if she had but one hand; with her right she opens the door to pleasure, but with her left to pain.

"Well, Tom, does your gal continue to love you?"
"Yes, more than ever. Why, she makes me presents."
"What has she given you lately?"
"Oh, she made me a present of my picture, which I paid five dollars for before I gave it to her."

A lady was once at the representation of Merpe, and did not shed a tear. Every body was surprised. Perceiving which the lady said "I could indeed have wept, but I am engaged out to-night to supper."

A Valuable Book for HOME READING;

ENTITLED
LIBRARY OF AMERICAN HISTORY.
Is which is collected from various authentic sources, a great amount of VALUABLE HISTORICAL information on the different subjects of Biography, Travels, Commerce, Statistics, Indians, Revolutionary Battles,
etc.; also, Anecdotes, Poetry and Miscellaneous Articles from the earliest periods in American History, illustrated with about one hundred and forty fine Engravings; in one Imperial 8vo. volume, handsomely bound in leather; 640 pages; price $3 00.

In no other single volume can be found so much American Historical information embodied in the general histories of the United States. In no other volume are the services rendered and hardships endured by the early pioneers and others in the settlement of this country, preserved for the reference of future generations. Containing as it does, so many articles that cannot but be read with lively interest by all lovers of their country; and the principal events being illustrated by numerous finely executed engravings, renders it not only useful and interesting to all classes of readers, but particularly attractive to children; and, while amusing, is at the same time imparting much useful information relative to their own country, and almost imperceptibly creating a love for reading. Among many other articles of deep interest, are the following, viz:

"An Historical Sketch of the Natchez, or District of Natchez;" "Destruction of the Moravian Towns, on the Muskingum River, 1781;"
"Indian Attack upon Wheeling, 1777;" "Old Cross Fire, a story of the North Western Border;" "The Mississippi;" "Early Habits, Customs, etc., of the West;" "The Squatters of the Mississippi;"
"American Caverns;" "Cruise of the Sparkler;"
"Old Ironsides on a Sea Shore;" "Fifty years of Ohio;" "Attack and Defence of the Alamo."

Billy McConnell.

The Spirit Rappings, Mesmerism, Clairvoyance and Psychometry; Or the Life and Times of Old Billy McConnell, the Witch Doctor; the great Prototype of the Modern Professor of the Imaginative Sciences. By one born among the Witches. 8vo., paper cover. Price 50 cts.

"Without indulging in a doubt of the truthfulness of 'Old Billy's' exploits among the Witches, or casting any direct reflections upon the professors of Mesmerism, Psychometry, or Biology; yet the Witch Doctor's career is described so graphically, and the parallel between his exploits and those of his more astute, but less original imitators of the Fox, Fitch, and Sanderland school, that we think the Spirits of the latter will experience any thing but gratification in the book, and may, perchance, spell that most famous of all spells—when in a corner—
"DONE."

Literary World.
"The object of this work is to show the absurdity of the ultraisms of the past day, which have so largely occupied public credulity, and which, under the grab of science, have acquired a degree of influence wholly undeserved.
The hit seems to be a most palpable one; and while the author thus cleverly shows up the modern imaginatives, he furnishes us an exceedingly interesting history of the early settlers of our own country. The picture is a most faithful one, and is presented in such an agreeable style, that it cannot fail to prove interesting to all classes of readers."—Western Lancet.

Gabrielli asked for singing for two months
5,000 ducats of the Empress Catharine of Russia.
"Why," said the Empress, "none of my field-replied La Gabrielli, "your majesty may make your field-marshal sing."

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM My farm, near Lebanon Ky., about the 1st of August, 1850; a fine, young Bay Mare. All the marks that I remember are: there is a white spot on one of her hind feet, and her mane turns to the left side. I will give a liberal reward to whoever delivers her to me.
O. B. WALSTON.

A VALUABLE BOOK

Of General Information, designed for Families and Private Libraries. Published by J. A. & U. P. JAMES, Cincinnati, O., entitled, UNIVERSAL PICTORIAL LIBRARY: Containing valuable papers on different subjects, comprising Natural History, Natural Science, Agriculture, Rural Economy, Biography, Fine Arts, The Orientals, Travels, Geography, Botany, Miscellaneous Readings, etc., etc. Illustrated with more than Five Hundred Engravings. One vol Imp. 8vo., 640 pp., embossed cover, marble edge, Price, $3.00.

This work has already become very popular, and contains an amount and variety of scientific and literary matter not to be found in the same compass in any other work. The various topics which it comprises are treated in a clear and simple manner, adapting it to all classes of readers. The many fine Engravings, by which the different subjects are illustrated, increase its value, rendering it at the same time more useful, as well as more attractive and interesting.

Among the contents of this very interesting and instructive work will be found numerous Biographical Sketches of Eminent characters, Leaves from History, descriptions of Living Costumes, Selections of Natural History, Tales of Savage and Civilized Life, Anecdotes, and a large amount of Miscellaneous matter, descriptive of wonders in Science, Nature, and Art, interesting and instructive not only to those of mature age, but readily comprehended by the junior portion of the family circle. In fine, it is a work that should find a place in every family.

N. B. ACTIVE AGENTS WANTED to circulate the above, and numerous other POPULAR WORKS, to whom such discounts will be made as will enable them to realize a handsome remuneration.

Address, J. A. & U. P. JAMES, No. 167 Walnut street between Fourth and Fifth.

Marriage and the Duties of Marriage Relations. In a series of Six Lectures, addressed to youth and the young in married life. By the Rev. Geo. W. Quinn. One volume 16mo., 216 pages, bound in muslin; price 50 cents.

"This little volume, of over two hundred pages, is well calculated to lessen the trials and difficulties common to the lot of humanity, whether in the married or single state. There are rough roads and stormy days in the path of most young married people; yet with such knowledge of correct rules and principles as this volume presents, these rough roads will be made smooth, the storms be calmed, and all the little difficulties attendant upon this divine institution be alleviated. It is a delightful and instructive volume for the young, from the pen of a good pastor, who has compiled the work from a series of Lectures delivered to the youth of his congregation. It is handsomely published and abounds in simple truths well calculated to lead the mind to profitable reflection."—Daily Indiana State Journal.

THE GEM; a handsome and useful present, for all seasons, containing Selections of PROSE AND POETRY, of a moral, instructive and useful character, including a number of Stories and Tales. The work contains 324 octavo pages, illustrated with two colored plates, and ten engravings; printed on fine paper, bound in embossed cambric, gilt backs. Price, $1.50. Embossed, marble edge, $1.75. Gilt edge, sides and back, $2.50.

The contents of this excellent work are of such a character that, while they amuse, they serve for instruction in the Moral and Social Virtues. Where there is a taste for light reading, especially in young persons, it is better that such reading should be imbued with those qualities that tend to make the reader "a wiser and better man." Such a work we have now the pleasure of offering to the public, and to the heads of families in particular, whose care it is to assist their children and friends in their choice of reading. Published and for sale by

J. A. & U. P. JAMES, No. 167 Walnut street, between 4th and 5th, CINCINNATI, O.

*The editor of any newspaper, to whom this is sent, inserting the above three times, and sending a copy of the paper containing the same, shall be entitled to receive a copy of each of the above named books, deliverable upon order, in Cincinnati, within one year from such insertion.

THE BRITISH PERIODICALS.

AND THE FARMER'S GUIDE.
LEONARD SCOTT & CO.,
No. 54 Gold street, New York.

CONTINUE to publish the four leading British Quarterly Reviews and Blackwood's Magazine; in addition to which they have recently commenced the publication of a valuable Agricultural work, called the "FARMER'S GUIDE TO SCIENTIFIC AND PRACTICAL AGRICULTURE." By HENRY STEPHENS, F. R. S., of Edinburgh, author of the "Book of the Farm," &c., &c.; assisted by JOHN P. NOBLE, M. A., New Haven, Professor of Scientific Agriculture in Yale College, &c., &c.

This highly valuable work will comprise two large royal octavo volumes, containing over 1400 pages, with 18 or 20 splendid steel engravings, and more than 600 engravings on wood, in the highest style of the art, illustrating almost every implement of husbandry now in use by the best farmers, the best methods of plowing, planting, haying, harvesting, &c., &c., the various domestic animals in their highest perfection; in short the pictorial feature of the book is unique, and will render it of incalculable value to the student of Agriculture.

This work is being published in Semi-monthly Numbers, of 64 pages each, exclusive of the Steel engravings, and is sold at 25 cents each, or $5 for the entire work in numbers, of which there will be at least twenty-two.

The British Periodicals Re-published are as follows, viz:

The London Quarterly Review (Conservative),
The Edinburgh Review (Whig),
The North British Review (Free-Church),
The Westminster Review (Liberal), and Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (Tory).

Although these works are distinguished by the political shades above indicated, yet but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects. It is their literary character which gives them their chief value, and in that they stand confessedly far above all other journals of their class. Blackwood, still under the masterly guidance of Christopher North, maintains its ancient celebrity, and is, at this time, unusually attractive, from the serial works of Bulwer and other literary notables, written for that magazine, and first appearing in its columns both in Great Britain and in the United States. Such works as "The Caxtons" and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer), "My Peninsular Medal," "The Green Hand," and others, of which numerous rival editions are issued by the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by those publishers from the pages of Blackwood, AFTER IT HAS BEEN ISSUED BY MESSRS. SCOTT & CO., so that subscribers to the reprint of that Magazine may always rely on having the EARLIEST reading of these fascinating tales.

For 1851; New Type and New Dress!!!

The largest, best and cheapest Newspaper IN THE WEST.
$200 Expended in Prize Stories.

Only One Dollar A Year to Clubs, for the LOUISVILLE WEEKLY COURIER!

In issuing our Prospectus for the 7th year since the Weekly Courier has been under the control of the present Editor and Proprietor, it is only necessary to offer our past course as a guarantee for the future, and to say that for the year 1851, the WEEKLY COURIER will be unequalled in all its Departments.

It will be just such a paper as is needed to give zest to the social circle, prove a profitable and pleasant fireside companion, and be indispensable to the farmer, the mechanic, the merchant and the trader.

As a newspaper, it shall continue to lead all of its contemporaries in Kentucky. Everything of interest will be obtained for its columns, by telegraph and otherwise, regardless of expense.

Its Agricultural Department will receive close attention, and will prove attractive to farmers.

Its Commercial Department will be equal to what it has been heretofore. For years, the Courier has been regarded by our merchants as the only strictly reliable Commercial paper printed in Louisville.

The services of our invaluable correspondent, whose letters alone are worth more than the price charged for the Courier, will be retained. During sessions of Congress, he will favor us with daily letters, and with tri-weekly letters the remainder of the year. We have also secured the services of an able correspondent at Frankfort, and our arrangements are so complete that we can promise our readers we will be able to furnish them with the earliest, fullest and most authentic intelligence from the seats of our National and State Governments.

The Courier for 1851 will be in all respects A MODEL PAPER, and we are determined that in beauty of typography, value of matter, and in all the requisites of a first rate paper, it shall not be excelled, if, indeed, equalled, by any paper either East or West.

TERMS:—By adopting the cash system, and strictly adhering to it, we are enabled to furnish our paper, large as it is, at the following unprecedentedly low rates:

One copy Weekly Courier, 1 year,	$1 50
Five copies,	6 00
Ten do	10 00
Twenty-one do	20 00

All orders should be addressed, post paid, to
W. N. HALDEMAN,
Louisville, Ky.

COLUMBIAN AND GREAT WEST

PROGRAMME FOR 1851.

The continuation of our excellent series of Western Romances and Tales.

Mr. Bennett's Forrest Rose will be followed by a domestic story of Western life, founded on facts, entitled

ELLA WINSTON;

Or, the Adventures of an Orphan Girl.

By WALTER WHITMORE, ESQ.

Author of "Ainslie," the "Maid of the Inn," "Love and Retribution," and other popular tales.

Mr. Whitmore is an accomplished scholar, as well as a polished and energetic writer, and his "Ella Winston" is pronounced, by good judges, to be equal if not superior to the best Western Novel ever written.

Ella Winston will be succeeded by GERALD LINCOLN; by Miss A. S. St. Clair, author of "Senora Inez," etc.

It is enough for us to say that this production is worthy of Miss St. Clair's reputation. To be finished in four numbers.

We take pleasure in informing our readers that, at a very large expense, we have succeeded in effecting an engagement with

MRS. E. D. N. SOUTHWORTH.
